

TURKEY PRICE HIGH; CHICKENS CHEAPER

Gobblers Selling at 60 and 65
Cents Retail, Slightly Less Than a Year Ago.

COST MORE BY THURSDAY

Geese, Ducks and Even Roast
Pig Easier on the Purse—
Cranberries Soaring.

Thanksgiving dinner—provided the family insists on having turkey as the main item—will cost only slightly less this year than last. The best turkeys were retailed yesterday at 60 and 65 cents a pound as against 70 cents and more last year, but a small increase may be expected by next Thursday.

It is not for the tradition among rich and poor alike that Thanksgiving is not Thanksgiving without a turkey, the householder could provide a dinner this year substantially cheaper than at any time for several years. Geese, ducks, chickens, guinea and even that ancient Chinese delicacy, roast pig, have declined in price. The turkey alone stays almost as high as it was.

But, according to wholesalers, retailers and independent observers, the high price of turkeys is not due to any greedy inclination on the part of the man who sells them. The climate is more to blame than anything else. The unseasonably warm weather in the last two weeks has prevented many shipments, particularly from distant points. Most of the turkeys in the local retail markets are from Maryland or from some part of the North. The Texas farmers, who raise more turkeys than the rest of the country put together, are holding most of their supply.

"The Texas turkeys have had a bad year," said George Alexander, the veteran meat broker of Wallabout Market. "The number is not quite up to normal, and the long warm season has prevented them from fattening. We may expect the bulk of the Texas crop in time for Christmas. I expect turkey prices in the markets to stay at 60 and 65 cents up to Thanksgiving, but some of the smaller untown dealers, due to possible difficulties in getting their supply, may have to charge more."

"The best way to bring the price of turkey down is for the householder to feature some other meat for Thanksgiving dinner. But, though there might be a dozen sorts of meat for Thanksgiving, only a turkey will do for Thanksgiving." In Wallabout Market, Brooklyn, turkey prices range from 57 to 60 cents a pound, the same as last year, while cranberries have gone up from $7.50 to $9 a box for the best grades. In some places in Manhattan, for a reason which remains a mystery, cranberries are nearly 100 per cent higher than last year. They retail at from 20 to 25 cents a pound.

Celery is lower. Weather conditions and a limited demand have brought the price to $3 and $4 per large crate. Potatoes from Virginia sold at $3 and $3.25 per barrel of 165 pounds. Potatoes, spinach, peas, peppers, lettuce, cauliflower, apples and all fruits and vegetables generally are lower now than at this time last year.

100-YEAR LIFE OPEN TO ALL, SAYS DR. STEPHEN SMITH

Physician Lays Down Ten Rules by Which Folks May Hope to Increase Their Years and Prescribes Milk Diet.

Dr. Stephen Smith, who is nearly 100—he was born in February 1823—sees no reason why every person with average health and a knowledge of how to live properly should not prolong the span of life to the five score and ten years. You can still be an active and useful citizen at 95 and 99 months, Dr. Smith thinks, and to prove it he recently delivered an address before a large gathering, stating half an hour and making his voice reach to the furthest person from the speaker's table.

Dr. Smith spends three hours a day at his typewriter, finishing the manuscript of his latest book, which is on longevity. It is work that keeps you young, according to this authority.

When asked to give ten important points to observe in order to attain the century mark, Dr. Smith offered the following:

"Eat hardly any meat.
"Drink lots of milk. If it disagrees with you, drink more.
"Take a ten or fifteen minute nap after lunch and dinner.
"Sleep ten hours.
"Take a nap outdoors when the weather permits.
"Don't smoke.
"Don't eat sweets.
"Take no alcoholic or other stimulants, like tea or coffee.
"Avoid the easy chair; absence of work is the first step to the grave.
"And finally, just be natural, quit all foolishness."

Dr. Smith's mother lived to be 97 and one sister reached the age of 100 years and 1 month. He has lived during the life of every President of the United States except Washington.

Dr. Smith was sickly as a child and young man. In fact he says he was not strong until after he reached 60. But he took excellent care of himself and was most strict about his diet, which consisted almost entirely of milk. People drink too little milk, according to him, and the excuse that it disagrees with them is nonsense. If they drank much more they would find it an easy and agreeable diet.

His daily mail contains hundreds of letters from persons asking him what they shall do to live longer. Some of the questions are absurd, he declared, and gave as an example the question received that day from a woman who said she had weak ankles and wanted to know what to do about it.

"Change your peg heel and pointed toe shoes for your grandmother's common-sense shoes," I told her. "If you can't eat eggs, cut them out; if you yawn and do not feel fresh, walk a mile, thus pumping dead air out and fresh air into your lungs."

Dr. Smith is a native of New York State. He was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1851. Three years later he was appointed surgeon to the City Hospital on Blackwell's Island. He founded and was president of the American Public Health Association.

WRIT SERVED ON ALDERMEN.

Browne Forces Fight for Municipal Pension Fund.

Stewart Browne, president of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, whose efforts to compel the Board of Estimate to include in the 1922 city budget provision for police and other municipal employees' pensions were unavailing, carried the fight yesterday to the Board of Aldermen.

On Friday Mr. Browne obtained from Supreme Court Justice George V. Mulvan a writ of mandamus directing the Board of Aldermen to show cause on November 22 why the pension allotments, amounting to approximately $2,600,000, should not be included in the budget. Copies of the writ were served yesterday on President La Guardia of the Board of Aldermen and on City Clerk Michael Cruise.

CHILD'S FOOT IN PIPE DRAWS TOWN TO BANK

Simple Method Finally Frees
Girl in Whitestone.

Adele Meyer, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Meyer, of 1 North Eighth avenue, Whitestone, kept Whitestone on edge for nearly an hour Thursday morning, when her foot became caught in a vent pipe in the cement of the steps of the First National Bank in Whitestone. Firemen were called with the idea of chopping the cement away, removing the pipe and cutting the pipe from the child's foot. But they were afraid of hurting Adele with flying pieces of cement. Stockwell Darr, a building contractor, put lard down the pipe around Adele's shoe, took a poker and a lath, and catching the hooked end of the poker under the child's heel, pushed down on the toe with the lath. Adele's foot slipped out without injury.

WARM CLOTHING NEEDED.
The auxiliary to the tuberculosis division of Bellevue Hospital appeals again for assistance in providing warm clothing for patients in order that they may take the cure. Articles for men, women or children will be most gratefully received and can be sent to Miss Sara E. Shaw, 419 East Twenty-sixth street, or will be called for on request.

She was utterly amazed—

To find that what she thought was the shop itself, was merely the open Sesame to a veritable wonderland of rare and beautiful objects.

But as she stepped from the elevator, and all the wonders of the place lay revealed before her—she stood amazed at the spectacle.

For here, in the very heart of the most exclusive shopping centre of New York, she had discovered a huge treasure store, the existence of which was hardly suggested by its modest street entrance.

The great floor upon which she found herself, was as large as a whole city block square! Its long, softly lighted aisles stretched away as far as the eye could follow, and yet this was but one of the great floors that comprise this surprising shop—this huge Home of Treasures, from the Old world and the New.

Astonishment soon gave way to delight as the details of the enormous display revealed themselves to her—for here were the things that in her planning she had hardly hoped to find.

And so, unmindful of the passing hour, she revelled in a world of new delights, dropping now into a welcoming deep upholstered chair—to rest a while, or see in fancy her own attractive home—made lovelier still by this new font of inspiration—

—“And your prices, too, are as amazingly low—quite as surprising as your store.”

Our modest street entrance invites you to come in and explore the amazing furniture store of—

SUPREME SPECIALIST

in Slenderizing Styles for Stout Women

THIS is the age of the specialist. In art, in music, as in science and industry, the man who does one thing and does it supremely well is the one who rises above his fellows.

The House of Lane Bryant is the ONLY Specialist of modes designed to mould the figure to youthful lines of grace. All the energy, all the imagination, all the inspiration of a great establishment are devoted to this one object.

A business that has doubled its size, not only in space, but in volume of business, during the last year of financial depression needs no further proof of the value of its service to the public.
